McGILL GLEE CLUB TO HOLD CONCERT SOON

On March 21 in R.V.C. Convocation Hall

TICKETS ON SALE

A Splendid Programme Is Assured

At last, after many weeks of waiting, the Glee Club is able to make an official announcement to the effect that the long-promised concert is to take place on Tuesday, March 21, at 8 p.m., in the R.V.C. Convocation Hall.

During the whole session the club has been working quietly but none the less surely towards this objective. At various times it took part in other performances but these were regarded as merely side lines and all practices were directed at this final appearance.

Comments have been heard to the effect that the Glee Club was only a waste of time, that those who joined it were merely musical cranks, and that it would never be successful at McGill. Every one of these objections has been refuted. The work which has been accomplished during the session has been enormous, when one considers the great amount of organizing necessary in the formation of such a club as this. The men who turned out and joined the club were by no means only those who knew a lot about music; they were hard-working men from all faculties, men who wanted to learn something about music and who realized the chance which was then presented to them. And finally, as to the probability of the club's success, that remains to be seen in the near future. This success does not, however, depend upon the degree to which the club can work up its numbers, they have reached that stage already; but it depends entirely upon the amount of support they are going to get from the student body at McGill.

Last week at the special meeting of the Students' Society, considerable discussion took place about the song books and about the chances of selling them successfully. Few perhaps understand what a great opportunity is now being given to help out with that sale. The Glee Club will include in its program some of the pieces from the song book and will thus

VISUAL EDUCATION GAINING ADHERENTS

Where do our conservative colleges stand on the movie question? What place have moving pictures in the educational system of our great universities? To answer this question, Grace Partridge Smith of the University of Iowa recently sent out a questionnaire.

Summing up the answers received, it was found that the faculties questioned report themselves in the main as "favorable" to the film as an educational aid in the classroom. Tabulated results show that moving pictures are used, to a greater or less extent, for instruction in many courses, including Latin, Greek, English, Home Economics, Journalism, Agriculture, Engineering, Commerce, Geology, Biology, Education, Athletics, Architecture, and Business Administration. Mention was also made of their use in colleges of medicine, in military departments and elsewhere.

While some of the universities are reported "enthusiastic" and others indicate a "growing interest," some admitted that the faculty was not particularly interested in films for classroom use. One official said: "This is largely due to lack of contact with motion pictures belonging to the professor's field. In some cases it is due to prejudice." Another university representative frankly states that "moving pictures are used less than slides because of the shortage of projection machines on the campus."

Extension divisions make large use of motion pictures, although there are still a few which do not avail themselves of this type of instructional material. Columbia, which does not utilize pictures in this particular division includes, nevertheless, in its extension offerings a course in photoplay technique.—The Lawrentian.

demonstrate in a very concrete manner the merit which is contained in it. Tickets are now on sale at the Union or they may be obtained from the members of the Glee Club. The price is fifty cents to all university students and seventy-five cents to others. It is very seldom that one has the chance to attend such a musical performance at so low a figure but as the club is not out for making money this has been made possible and the price will remain at a mark which will just enable them to cover the expenses.

Watch the Daily for future announcements with regard to the program and other important details.

OLD CAMPUS CHOSEN FOR GYMNASIUM

To Be Situated in South-East Corner

EARLY PROSPECTS

Dormitories and Gymnasium Confined in One Building

Everything points to an early commencement being made on the long contemplated addition to our University buildings, in which are to be combined, gymnasium and dormitory facilities. The site that has been selected is the south-east corner of the Campus, almost directly opposite the Union. The Committee were unanimous in their agreement on the selection of the situation, but as yet, although it is expected that work will be begun in the near future, it has not been decided finally whether or not it will be held over till next spring. Sir Arthur Currie, and Mr. J. W. Ross, chairman of the Gymnasium Building Committee, are both strongly in favour of action being taken in the next two or three months; however, several architects have drawn up prospective plans and the Committee are awaiting upon the submission and consideration of their tenders.

It is realized that the Gymnasium, in order to conform to the present appearance of the buildings surrounding, will have to be of similar structure and material—a fact which has received the attention of the Committee.

Needless to say, the erection of this building will fill a big gap in the University. The need of a gymnasium has long been evident, and it is doubtful whether it takes second place to the demand for dormitory accommodation. Economy has been a big factor in determining the inclusion of the two features in the one building; the funds of the Centennial Endowment Campaign are being put towards its construction, so as to enable a start being made at the first opportunity.

Every aspect of the question has been regarded in the choice of a site, the position, which was being supported by the Department of Physical Education and by the Students' Society, in the vicinity of the Stadium was carefully discussed and it was at length thought that the advantages of accessibility to be gained by placing it on the campus, outweighed some of the benefits that might be derived from choosing the Stadium.

AMBRIDGE PRES. OF SCI. UNDERGRAD

Le Baron Elected as Vice-President

The Science elections yesterday resulted in D. W. Ambridge being elected president. His only opponent was H. B. O'Heir. The votes cast for vice-president were a little more evenly split up but K. S. Le Baron was elected by 147 majority over Stephen and MacLaren, who each had 74. L. B. Almond was elected assistant secretary with a vote of 284 against Melne's 119.

Dave Williamson is the new treasurer, with 197 votes, against Mitchell's 127 and Muir's 93.

The total number of votes polled this year is quite good, as over 70 per cent of the total number of Science men voted. This is an increase of about 4 per cent over last year.

The annual meeting will be held Thursday, March 9, at 5 p.m., when the new executive will take over their duties.

Every Science man is asked to be on hand as there are some very interesting things to be discussed.

Results of elections are:
President—D. W. Ambridge, 357;
H. B. O'Heir, 81.
Vice-President—K. S. Le Baron, 221; Roy MacLaren, 74; Gordon Stephen, 74; Gordon McKindsey, 61.
Assistant Secretary—L. B. Almond, 284; E. W. Melne, 119.
Treasurer—Dave Williamson, 197; W. Mitchell, 127; A. W. Muir, 93.

BALLOTING TO BE IN UNION LOBBY TODAY

Everyone Urged to Cast a Vote

8.30—6.00

Several Keen Contests Expected in Elections

Today is election day. Balloting is taking place in the lobby of the Union where the polls are to be open from eight thirty a.m. until six p.m. The most time-pressed student is afforded an opportunity to exercise his right of voting for the men whom he believes to be the most fitting for some of the higher administrative positions. The vacancies which are to be filled as a result of today's polling are among the most important in undergraduate and athletic circles. The vice-president and the secretary of the Union are to be elected, while the presidencies of the Athletic Association, the Track and Hockey clubs are also being contested.

The candidates for all these responsible offices are singularly evenly matched and it is almost certain that several close and interesting contests will result. For each of these positions two candidates are running. O. L. McCullough and A. G. Hill have been nominated as candidates for vice-president of the Union, while Dick Eager and Sid Harris are seeking election as the secretary. The other candidates are: Don Foss and Bill Brewer for President of the Athletic Association; R. Legg and Dave Johnson for president of the Track Club; Gordie Quackenbush and Matty Dineen for president of the Hockey Club. None of these men need any introduction to the undergraduate body as they have all attained prominence in the various activities which they are seeking to represent.

The platforms of all these men are published in another column. Everyone is urged to read these carefully and thoughtfully, and to vote accordingly. It is the duty of everyone to investigate the platforms of the various candidates, and to register his vote for the platform which he believes will be to the greatest advantage of McGill.

RUGBY PLAYERS GET POINTERS

"Shag" Gives Talk to Football Enthusiasts in Union

There was a promising turnout in the Union at the rugby meeting called yesterday afternoon by Coach "Shag" Shaughnessy. Most of last season's players were on hand and a goodly number of new men put in an appearance which fact augurs well for McGill football prospects next autumn.

"Shag" expressed himself as being well pleased by the showing and said that he hoped that all present would be out in uniform the coming fall. He urged the necessity of new material being brought forward due largely to the fact that so many of this year's regulars were graduating and some of them might be prevented from playing from other causes. There are three teams. The senior, intermediates and junior all of these are entered in the intercollegiate league and all are worthy of an effort being made to gain a place upon their line-up. The Coach went on to point out that for various reasons, it would not be possible to carry on extensive practice this spring but that work would be commenced early next September and that it was essential that any aspiring rugby player be out from the beginning.

TODAY'S ELECTIONS

Today the students of McGill will have an opportunity of voting for those men whom they think best fitted to fill the various executive positions of the college. The platforms of these men are given elsewhere and it is the duty of every undergraduate to decide carefully on the men he thinks are best, then to vote accordingly. A healthy interest in such affairs is necessary to a vigorous college life and it is to be hoped that the vote this year will be heavier even than it was last year.

Voting will take place practically all day in the Union, and everyone should have ample time to register his vote.

THE GLEE CLUB CONCERT.

In another column of today's issue the announcement is made of the Glee Club concert, which is to be held at an early date. This announcement will be heartily welcomed by all music lovers at McGill, for it holds forth the promise of an evening that cannot be otherwise than enjoyable.

Efficient organization and careful training have led to the development of a Glee Club that reflects great credit on those who instituted the idea and who have carried it through to a successful conclusion. The great advantage of this club seems to be the opportunity it affords to those who have some musical talent of developing those talents to a still greater extent, and it thoroughly deserves the support of the undergraduate body in this approaching concert, which represents the culmination of a hard season's work.

THE "LINE MAN."

A certain Canadian corporal during the late war was told by a doctor that he was suffering from tuberculosis and was ordered to the base hospital in France. He refused to go. He had seen most of the war, he said, and intended staying there until the show was over. A few months later his battery engaged in the fighting around Bourlon Wood. The corporal, who was a signaller, was sent ahead to reconnoitre, and was shot and killed by a German machine gunner when almost within sight of Cambrai. If he had wished he might have been many miles away from the fighting area, but he was a "line man," and as long as life was granted to him, the war zone of France was the only place in God's wide world for him.

This is merely one of many similar incidents. The armies who won the war were full of men like this. They had to be, or they would never have won. Men of this stamp made it a point to be always up near the line somewhere and even though wounded and out of it for a time, had a most disconcerting habit of coming back for more. Often their comrades called them fools for taking chances, but taking chances was the privilege of the "line man," sometimes he got away with it, sometimes he did not.

The greatest function of a college is to turn out "line men," that is, men in whom the qualities of fearlessness and self-sacrifice are combined, and who because of those qualities will be able to step out into the world and assume the leadership in business, in church and in state.

In the ordinary hum-drum round of undergraduate days it is difficult to pick those men who are "line men" and those who are not. It is only when man is face to face with some catastrophe such as war in which the elemental forces of Nature are let loose that he comes out into the open and shows what stuff he is made of. Still, we think that we are justified in saying that college life does tend to produce men who have the characteristics of "line men," the late war proved that.

There is as great a need for fighting men in the world today as there was in 1914. The war has left a host of problems that only men who are "line men" can solve. College men of today will be the leaders of tomorrow but only in so far as they are imbued with the spirit of this Canadian corporal will their leadership be of any true service to their country.

CANADIAN CLUB IN N.Y. ACTIVE

Want Names of All Canadians in New York and Vicinity

In the country to the south of us, there are at present living hundreds of thousands of Canadians, being found in every town and city of any size in the States. The city of New York is no exception to this and as the result of this state of affairs, the Canadian Club of New York came into existence. This Club has been organized for several years past but is not an organization solely for amusement and social activities. The Canadian Club is the center of activities for Canadians living in New York and vicinity and has done a great deal of good, especially during the past years, during which hard times have been felt in all parts of the world and by all classes of society.

Many Canadian Veterans of the Great War have sought their fortunes in this metropolis but all, unhappily, have not achieved success and in consequence, some of them have been up against hard times. The Club has helped many of these worthy cases and Canadians, who are really in trouble, are given immediate aid, if the Club is given an opportunity to do so. One of the most recent and most outstanding of these, was when a young Canadian girl from Nova Scotia, penniless and without friends, was found dead in a rooming house, having died from asphyxiation. The Canadian Club took charge of all the funeral arrangements and several members attended the burial services.

At present an effort is being made to get in touch with Canadians in New York, who are not now members of the Club, and the executive desire that any, who have friends or relatives living in New York City and vicinity and New Jersey, will communicate their names and addresses to the following, in order that they may be invited to enjoy the privileges and advantages which the Club affords.

GYMNASIUM CLUB HELD WORKOUT

Compete With 'Varsity on Saturday

The McGill Gymnasium Club held a workout yesterday afternoon in the High School gym in preparation for their competition against the Toronto University team, which takes place on Saturday, March 11. The following men will represent McGill: Scott, Holland, Delahaye, Rolleston, Consiglio, McLetchie.

The competitions will be held in the Central Y gymnasium. In the morning the teams will go through the set movements and in the evening at 7.30 the voluntary movements will take place. The evening exhibition will of course be the most interesting of the two, as then each man will be doing a different "stunt." The judges of the events will be C. B. Power, instructor at the High School; M. Furey, physical director at the Y; and Major Long.

It is expected that the McGill Ladies' Basketball teams will play an exhibition game. This event added to the competitions will certainly make an interesting evening at the Y next Saturday night.

The gym team has been handicapped by lack of a well-fitted college gymnasium, and they have been practicing at various places, Molson Hall, the High School, and Central Y, wherever they could get a chance on the gym floors, but nevertheless the team is expected to make a creditable showing against Toronto on Saturday.

PEPYS AT MCGILL

Tuesday, March 7th.—Much afflicted with the melancholy of home-sickness this day, for gazing out from the casement of my chamber as I sat awaiting my deliverance from the present rheum that is upon me I spied a most prodigious down-fall of rain upon the earth such as I have not seen since last I waded about the lush pastures of my Norfolk estates. Tomorrow I do intend to return again to my discourses at the colleges, having first procured me from the chirographer in attendance a writ of sickness, or else I am like to be expelled from these colleges on a plea of absence; such a difficult matter do the dons find it to persuade anyone to attend at their discourses unless it be by compulsion.

PHARMACEUTICAL SOCIETY MEETING

Dr. Coulter Speaks on Medicinal Serums

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Pharmaceutical Society was held last night. The speaker was Dr. Coulter, who delivered a most interesting lecture on medicinal serums. Dr. Coulter has done much research work in biological serums, and has thereby gained an extensive knowledge of the intricate work involved. He explained that serums were divided into two classes, namely, those obtained from animals which were immunized from disease, and those obtained from animals not immunized. These can again be subdivided into three classes. Those which are of proven medicinal and therapeutic value; those whose medicinal values are still doubtful and those serums which are positively discarded. As an example of serums, Dr. Coulter chose to speak on the antiphosphoric serum, the bacillus of which was discovered in 1884.

Extreme care in handling, and perfect sterilization were necessary in the preparation of serums. The bacteria of the serums are cultivated in solutions of agar, and grow in colonies. There are specially constructed incubating rooms with double walls, floors and windows. These incubating rooms are always kept at the same temperature. In fact, every precaution and advantage are employed to promote a normal growth of bacilli.

The bacteriological test for serums is perhaps the most delicate and intricate work involved. The method employed is to find the least amount of toxin required to kill a standardized guinea pig of 250 grammes weight in four days.

Most serums are obtained from horses, although human serums would be preferable; but the latter kind cannot be obtained for obvious reasons. The lantern slides gave one an idea of the splendid treatment these animals receive in order to be employed in the manufacture of serums. A point to note is that there is no pain attached. There is no fixed dosage for serums. As much as 70 serums were injected into a small girl.

Dr. Coulter was moved a hearty vote of thanks by Mr. Lambly and was delivered by the president, who pointed out that no better evidence of Dr. Coulter's popularity with the society could be given than the fact that this is his second lecture before the society, and that he has promised to lecture again in the near future.

After a short business session the meeting was adjourned.

DELTA SIGMA HOLDS INTERCLASS DEBATE

The Delta Sigma debate between the second and third years will take place to-day at 4 o'clock in the Common Room, not at 3 o'clock as was announced in yesterday's "Daily." The subject for debate is "Resolved that Fraternities, Secret Societies, should be abolished at McGill." This, though more intimately, perhaps, affecting the male element of the university, affords a very interesting topic for discussion. A factor which gives added importance to the debate to be held to-day is that a point for the banner will be awarded on its result. It is hoped that all members of R. V. C. will make a special effort to attend this, the final debate in the inter-year series.

NO PAIN --- NO BRAIN

The student who has a smattering of psychology ought to realize that, in college, he is being worked upon by varied and conflicting forces, and ought to establish, at some early point in his career, an attitude toward them. He should come to see that the home influence which is seemingly drawing him one way, and the college training which points another, are not directly opposed to each other, but are both laboring for his best interests. He should go back definitely on frequent occasions to review the purposes which brought him to college.

Too often students respect literally their parents' advice to steer their courses clear of everything which was not orthodox in the last generation, and, doing so, lose sight entirely of the fact that these same parents are anxious to have them become educated. After all, college is supposed to develop a student, to broaden him, and so change him. He who puts himself under its influence, and at the same time fights against every indication of a change within himself, is defeating his own purpose.

Many come to college with nineteenth-century minds forced off at storage-places for old theories, prejudices, doctrines, beliefs, and, exposing the other tenth, are surprised that a whole education cannot crowd itself in. These people believe what they want to believe, see what they want to see, and frequently go away in no-wise changed by their experience. Fearing the pain of disillusionment, they suffer instead the intellectual disease called ignorance, which is a most besotted sort of bliss.

Every college has in its curriculum a certain number of courses which deal with new and interesting subjects, but which are looked upon by the uninitiate as "radical" courses. The hidebound student invariably avoids these. He cannot afford as a part of his mental equipment anything that is not already there, and so stands in the paradoxical position of one who, not knowing, yet knows what he wants to know.

This is folly. The whole purpose of a University is defeated by such a practice. Each group of people fits itself into its own groove and is educated narrowly, refusing to give consideration to anything which threatens the snug comfort of beliefs acquired in high school or in grammar school. Neither the "broader" nor the "higher" education is within the reach of such as these.

We ought to know as college students that no moral conviction which is real, and no religious belief which is worth-while, can be harmed by education. We ought to be willing to endure the temporary mental discomfort of acquiring new points of view. We should let ourselves be schooled now that we are here, in as wide a range of subjects as is consistent with our immediate program, that we may have more knowledge, more curiosity, more ability than when we came. It is only the growing-pains of education that cause discomfort; the completed growth is a thing of lasting benefit.

But this is no argument to uphold the campus cynic, the student who feels that, as an educated gentleman, he must turn agnostic and refuse to believe anything. Such an individual is missing the point of education, which, in the last analysis, should teach us to formulate for ourselves a sound, constructive philosophy, and should help to give us an intelligent understanding faith.—Michigan Daily.

LECTURE ON CHRISTIANITY IN THE EAST

Rev. A. W. Lochead Spoke in Presbyterian College

SMALL ATTENDANCE

Strenuous Times for Early Missionaries

Before a small audience, smaller than the occasion warranted, Rev. A. W. Lochead delivered his lecture on "The Influence of Christianity on China." He opened by enumerating the various contributions China had made to the world, the magnetic needle used for the compass, spectacles, block-printing, gun-powder, silk, porcelain and last but not least—playing cards.

China was first visited only after the Cape of Good Hope had been rounded. In 1518 the first Portuguese embassy was sent to China but the traders mistreated and exploited the natives, while in 1522 a second commercial fleet paid a visit.

When speaking of missions to the East one cannot do so without mentioning Francis-Xavier. He became a professor but led a very wild life, gambling, fighting and dancing.

However he finally went in for the ministry and tried to get a station. He was unable to enter China so passed his time on the southwest boundary, still trying to get in till at length he was carried off by disease. The first and best known Jesuit missionary was a Spaniard, Father Ricci. He took a number of clocks and other articles to gain the favour of the Chinese and was allowed to remain on the mainland while others had to return to their ships at nightfall. After making his way to Canton, he continued to Peking but the missionaries were much persecuted, some being imprisoned, others put to death.

After journeying to different districts he at length returned to Peking where he gave lectures on astronomy and Christianity, some of the natives becoming Christians. In 1601, when he died, the emperor gave him a tomb and in recognition of his services granted property to the missionaries.

One man made a journey from northern India to Western China, which took him three and a half years, at the end of which he died. Then a priest, also from India, went into Tibet and made good progress, a number being baptised. At length attacks were made on him and he was killed, while Christianity was suppressed. The next man was Adam Schall from Cologne; then came Father Verbiest a most talented Jesuit, who reformed the Chinese calendar and wrote sixteen books on astronomy in Chinese. He also made a steam-engine which was used on land and also a steam-boat before they were thought of in the West. The next man of note was Father Gerbillon who negotiated a treaty with Russia.

The Russians, who had secured Siberia for a few bottles of vodka were threatening the Chinese boundary. Conferences were called to make peace but no agreement was reached until the Jesuits intervened. These missionaries wrote back to the pope to have Chinese in the church instead of Latin; they saw that some change would have to be made and in the speaker's estimation is the only way success will be obtained.

A number of Dominican monks made repeated trips from the Philippine Islands but were repelled each time. The Chinese emperor took drastic action when missionaries tried to force Papal Bulls upon the people. He found that these decrees were not observed in the Western countries so he could not see how the Chinese could be expected to obey them. He ended by barring all missionaries from China.

UNION CONVENTION

Bert Rochester has left for Boston, Mass., where he will act as the McGill delegate to the Convention of representatives of various college unions, which is meeting at Harvard for a period of three days. Toronto "Varsity" is also sending a man down to act in a like capacity. The congress proposes to discuss matters of general university interest, on which it is felt that the opinions of the different colleges will be of value in the discussions.

The "Daily" has completed arrangements whereby any questions of importance will be telegraphed for publication.

PAGE AND WILSON DISAGREED ON WAR

Former Ambassador Wanted Action After Lusitania

"The same crowd that supplies money to buy labor leaders and the press and to blow up factories in the United States keeps a good supply of peace-liars on tap. It'll be fun to watch Bryan perform and never suspect that anybody is lying to him or laughing at him; and he'll go home convinced that he's done the job and he'll let loose doves all over the land till they are as thick as English sparrows. Not even the President could teach him anything permanently. He can do no harm on this side the world. It's only your side that's in any possible danger; and, if I read the signs right, there's a diminishing danger there."

"So, let William J. come. He can't hurt Europe—nor help it; and you can spare him. Let all of the Peace-gang come. You can spare them, too; and they can do no harm here. Let somebody induce Hoke Smith to come, too. You have hit on a great scheme—friendly deportation."

"And Bryan won't be alone. Daughters of the Dove of Peace and Sons of the Olive Branch come every week. The latest, Spn came to see me today. He said the German Chancellor told him that he wanted peace—wants it now and wants it bad, and that only one thing stood in the way—if England would agree not to take Belgium. Germany would at once make peace! This otherwise sensible American wanted me to take him to see Sir Edward to tell him this, and to suggest to him to go over to Holland next week to meet the German Chancellor and fix it up."

DISAPPROVED WILSON COURSE
In the same letter, which was undated, but which was written in August, 1915, about three months after the sinking of the Lusitania on May 7, Mr. Page expressed disapproval of the course of President Wilson.

"I cannot express my admiration of the President's management, so far, at least, of his colossal task of leading us right," Mr. Page wrote. "He has shown his supreme wisdom up to this point and I have the profoundest confidence in his judgment. But I hope he doesn't fool himself about the future? I'm sure he doesn't. I see no possible way for us to keep out, because I know the ignorance and falseness of the German leaders. They'll drown or kill more Americans—on the sea and in America. They may at last even attack one of our own passenger ships, or do something that will dramatically reveal them to the whole American people. Then, of course, the turn will be called. It's only a question of time; and I am afraid the war will last long enough to give the time. An early peace is all that can prevent them from driving us at last into war; and I can see no chance of an early peace. You had as well prepare as fast as the condition of public opinion will permit."

Mr. Page, as shown by quotations attributed to him and by extracts, from his letters over the failure of President Wilson to hold Germany to the "strict accountability" of his first Lusitania note. He wrote President Wilson frequently and was said to have expressed his views with extreme frankness. Mr. Hendrick says that the President had frequently spoken of Mr. Page's letters and at the pleasure they gave him and the information they furnished him, but that his attitude toward Mr. Page and his letters changed after the sinking of the Lusitania and the Arabic.

WILSON TURNS ON PAGE.

"He now found little pleasure or satisfaction in the Page communications," Mr. Hendrick writes. "When Mr. Wilson found that one of his former confidants had turned out to be a critic, that man instantaneously passed out of his life. And this was now Page's fate: the friendship and associations of forty years were as though they had never been. Just why Mr. Wilson did not recall his Ambassador is a question that has puzzled Page's friends. He would sometimes refer to him as a man who was 'more British than the British,' as one who had been taken completely captive by British blandishments, but he never came to the point of dismissing him. Perhaps he did not care to face the public scandal that such an act would have caused; but a more plausible reason is that Page, despite the causes which he had given for irritation, was indispensable to him. Page's early letters furnished the President ideas which had taken shape in Wilson's policies, and, disagreeable as the communications now became, they are evidences that they influenced the solitary statesman in the White House, and that they had much to do in finally forcing Mr. Wilson into the war.

WARNS COLONEL HOUSE OF BRITISH VIEWS.

Writing on July 21, 1915 Mr. Page informed Colonel House that the feeling was growing in England that the American Government was "pusillanimous."

"Of course such a judgment is not fair," he continued. "It is formed without knowing the conditions in the United States. But I think you ought to realize the strength of this sentiment. No doubt before you receive this the President will send something to Germany that will amount to an ultimatum and there will be at least a momentary change of sentiment here. But, looking at the thing in a long-range way, we're bound to get into the war. For the Germans will blow up more American travelers without notice. And by dallying with them we do not change the ultimate result, but we take away from ourselves the spunk and credit of getting in instead of being kicked and cursed in. We've got to get in: they won't play the game in any other way. I have news direct from a high German source in Berlin which strongly confirms this."

"It's a curious thing to say. But the only solution that I see is another Lusitania outrage, which would force war."

"The London papers every day say that the President will send a strong note, etc. And the people here say, 'Damn notes! hasn't he written enough?' Writing notes hurts nobody—changes nothing."

Other letters from Mr. Page show that he was concerned over the failure of the American Government to dismiss Dr. Dumba, the Austrian Ambassador, and Count von Bernstorff. "I tell you with all solemnity," he wrote to Colonel House on Sept. 10, 1915, "that British opinion and the British Government have absolutely lost their respect for us and their former high estimate of the President. And that former respect will be gone for good unless he acts now very quickly."

"They will pay nothing more than formal and polite attention to anything we may hereafter say. This is not resentful. They don't particularly care for us to get into the war. Their feeling (I mean among our best old friends) is not resentful. It is simply sorrowful. They had the highest respect for our people and our President. The Germans defy us: we sit in silence. They conclude there that we'll submit to anything from anybody. We'll write strong notes—nothing more."

PAGE TO THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. Page's frankness in writing President Wilson is illustrated in several letters. The following is an extract from one of these letters, dated Jan. 5, 1916, giving Mr. Page's summary of different classes of English opinion of the United States:

"(One) The governing class: Mr. X (a Cabinet member) told Mrs. Page a few nights ago that for sentimental reasons only he would be gratified to see the United States in the war, along with the Allies, but that merly sentimental reasons were not a sufficient reason for war—by no means; that he felt most grateful for the sympathetic attitude of the large mass of the American people, that he had no right to expect anything from our Government, whose neutral position was entirely proper. Then he added: 'But what I can't for the life of me understand is your Government's failure to express its disapproval of the German utter disregard of its Lusitania notes. After eight months it has done nothing but write more notes. My love for America, I must confess, is offended at this inaction and—puzzled. I can't understand it. You will pardon me, I am sure.'"

"(Two) 'Middle Class' opinion: A common nickname for Americans in the financial and newspaper districts of London is 'Tooprouds.'"

"(Three) The man in the street: At one of the moving picture shows in a large theatre a little while ago they filled in an interval by throwing on the screen the picture of the monarch, or head of State, and of the flag of each of the principal nations. When the American picture appeared, there was such hissing and groaning as caused the managers hastily to move that picture off the screen."

URGED WILSON TO ACT.

The last letter from Mr. Page in the series, dated Feb. 15, 1916, is to President Wilson and informs the latter that only prompt action can cause British opinion to turn favorably to the United States. In this letter Mr. Page said:

"If you immediately refuse to have further parley or to yield one jot or tittle of your original Lusitania notes, and if you at once break diplomatic relations with the German Empire, and then declare the most vigorous embargo on the Central Powers, you will quickly end the war. There will be an immediate collapse in German credit. If there are any Allies who are wavering, such action will hold them in line. Certain European Neutrals—Sweden, Rumania, Greece, and others—will put up a firm resistance to Germanic influences and certain of them will take part with Great Britain and France. There will be an end at once to the German propaganda, which is now worldwide. The moral weight of our country will be a determining influence and bring an early peace. The credit you will receive for such a decision will make you immortal, and even the people of Germany will be forever grateful."

"It is my conviction that we would not be called upon to fire a gun or to lose one human life."

"The sympathies of the American people will be brought in line with the Administration."

"If we settle the Lusitania question by compromising in any way your original demands, or if we permit it to drag on longer, America can have no part in bringing the war to an end. The current of Allied opinion will run so strongly against the Administration that no censorship and no friendly interference by an Allied Government can stem the distrust of our Government which is now so strong in Europe."

"We shall gain by any further delay only a dangerous, thankless, and opulent isolation. The Lusitania is the turning point in our history. The time to act is now."

—New York Times.

A gentleman from Boston met a woodsman from Kentucky. Boosting their respective states the former started in: "Massachusetts is the home of boots and shoes." Not to be outdone the latter countered, "Wall, 'reckon ole Kaintuck is the home o' booze an' shoots."

ARTS UNDERGRAD DINNER THURS. 15TH

On Thursday, March 16th the Annual Arts Undergraduate dinner will be held in the Grill Room of the Ritz Carlton Hotel.

A trio of able speakers have been procured for this event, namely Dr. Stephen Leacock, Dean Laing and Prof. Du Roure.

Dr. Leacock needs no introduction to McGill men, and in himself should prove to be a great drawing card. Dean Laing, though but recently came to the University has proved himself to be a speaker of some ability, and Prof. Du Roure is noted for his witty and vivacious after dinner speeches.

Those who have attended this function in former years know that it is one

Sec-Treas. Ontario Club, '21-22.

Sec-Mgr. Indoor Baseball Club, '21-22.

Platform:—

One can hardly bring out a definite platform in connection with an office such as I seek. There are no radical changes necessary regarding the policy of the Union. The present one must be on the right lines as it is only during the last two years that the Union has been on a paying basis. A continuance of this successful policy is the thing to be aimed at.

I am strongly in favor of the holding of more smokers and suchlike student activities in the Union and would very much like to see a revival of the Freshman-Sophomore smoker. I can only say that if elected I will do all in my power to satisfactorily fill the position.

SYDNEY L. (Syd) HARRIS.

FOR SECRETARY OF THE UNION.

Born at Ottawa in 1899. High-school education taken at Ottawa Collegiate Institute 1914-1919. Entered McGill in the fall of 1919 with the class of Medicine '25.

Platform:—

If given the honour of representing the student-body in the capacity of Secretary of the Union, I will put forth every earnest effort to fulfill the duties of this position in an efficient and trustworthy manner.

In my opinion, the Union should mean more to the average student than it does now, and, to bring this about, I would suggest that more functions of a nature which the average student could attend be held there. I do not mean that these affairs, such as smokers, concerts, or other informal entertainments, should infringe in any way on the present traditional formal dances, which hold the distinction of being the most popular and the most enjoyable social events of the college year, but that they should be more numerous, and held at times most convenient to the students.

If elected I shall do all I can to further the students' interests and shall use whatever experience I have acquired while serving in various offices around McGill to the best advantage of the student-body.

Secretary of Intermediate City League 1920-21.

Secretary of Intercollegiate Hockey Union and McGill Representative to Intercollegiate Hockey Union 1921-22.

Platform:—

If I am elected as President of the Hockey Club (1) I promise to serve and encourage the interests of all students in general, and particularly those interested in hockey, in as far as their interests come within the jurisdiction of the Students' Council.

(2) I shall endeavour to preserve the spirit of co-operation and friendship that has characterized our Senior, Intermediate and Junior teams in past years, and which has so materially helped in making them worthy representatives of our university.

(3) I shall always encourage new players to turn out, and will see that they get the proper equipment and a fair chance to show their ability.

(4) I shall do my best to encourage the Intermediate and Junior teams, and if our financial standing permits, next season, I will strive to have the Intermediate and Junior teams entered in their respective sections of the Intercollegiate Hockey Union.

(5) I will always encourage class and interfaculty hockey and I will give the manager of Inter-Mural Hockey the full moral and financial support of the Hockey Club in his endeavors to keep Inter-Mural hockey up to the high standard it has been raised to, in the last two years at McGill.

(6) Lastly, I will place the experience I have acquired, either as a player or as an officer on the executive of various hockey organizations, at the service of the students and encourage hockey in whatever way possible.

W. B. BREWER.
FOR PRESIDENT OF ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

To the Students of McGill University.
I am a candidate for the Presidency of the Athletic Association of our University.

If you see fit to elect me to this position I assure you that the duties of this office will receive very close attention from me as I shall have more than sufficient time to devote to the work, during the coming year.

If I am elected I shall encourage intercollegiate and international athletics and my best efforts will be directed toward arranging an intercollegiate indoor baseball league.

If I am successful in this election I will carry on and if possible augment the present system of interclass and inter-faculty competitive athletics. I was born at Buckingham, Quebec, Sept. 8 1899, and graduated from Hailybury High School in the summer of 1920.

As a result of my experience on the Union House Committee during the past year I feel that there is plenty of opportunity for making the Union a greater centre for Student Social Activities.

With this aim in view, I shall, if elected, do my best to encourage more social functions, such as smokers, in order to promote a greater University spirit.

GIRLS CAMP NEAR SAINTE AGATHE

Directors Are Miss Jamieson and Miss Halliday

Camp Ouareau is one of the first Canadian camps for girls, who desire, in addition to the delights of out-door life, instruction in land and water sports, riding, nature study, arts and crafts, etc., and the opportunity of going on tramping and canoeing expeditions into the wilderness. Camp Ouareau is situated near St. Agathe about 60 miles north of Montreal on Lac Ouareau, an interesting lake in the Laurentian Mts. The nearest villages are wholly French and afford an interesting study, while Lac Ouareau is within a short distance of the trail to Lookout Mountain, where conditions make possible an over-night camp and a sunrise breakfast in the very heart of nature.

The directors Miss Mabel Jamieson and Miss Fern Halliday are both Canadian University Women who have had much experience in camping and directing girls. Miss Jamieson was the National Student Secretary of the Dominion Council of the Y. M. C. A. for five years. She was an active member of the Canadian Alpine Club having experience in the Canadian Rockies also in the Georgian Bay and Algonquin Park districts. Miss Halliday has been Girls' Work Secretary of the Montreal Y. M. C. A. for the last three years, and has had charge of the Junior Girls' Camp in the Laurentians.

An interesting program has been outlined including instruction in Swimming, riding, tennis, baseball, basketball, athletic and folk dancing. Expeditions will be made with the Nature Study councillor who will interest the girls in trees, flowers, birds and the starry heavens. An Arts and Crafts specialist will help the girls with wood-carving, weaving, and basketry. French will also be a special feature of the camp. A doctor will be in attendance and special health talks and instruction in first aid will be given. Everything possible has been done to make the camp a success; to give the best of everything that will tend to build character and develop a splendid physique.

The camp dates are from June 28 to Aug. 25, and further information may be received from—The Director, St. Metcalfe St. Montreal.

a local theatre. There will be good "cats" and smoke fiends will be able to revel in their favorite tobacco and cigs.

Keep this date open and you will not be disappointed for having spent an evening with the boys from the Eastern Townships.
